Description:

The Department of Biology and Environmental Science at the University of New Haven invites applications for a Practitioner in Residence position beginning August 2020.

The Department seeks to hire a highly skilled teacher with expertise in Anatomy and Physiology. We offer two large multi-section A&P courses and the successful applicant will coordinate the instruction of the lecture and laboratory sections, in addition to teaching these courses. These courses serve majors in our department and also the growing programs in our School of Health Sciences. Our department is large and varied with undergraduate degrees in Biology, Genetics and Biotechnology, Marine Biology, Marine Affairs, and Environmental Science and graduate M.S. programs in Cell and Molecular Biology and Environmental Science.

The University of New Haven is a private, top-tier comprehensive institution that provides students with a combination of a solid liberal arts education and real-world, hands-on career and research opportunities. UNH enrolls approximately 6,900 students, including nearly 1,800 graduate students and more 5,100 undergraduates - the majority of whom reside in University housing. Through its College of Arts and Sciences, College of Business, Henry C. Lee College of Criminal Justice and Forensic Sciences, Tagliatela College of Engineering, and School of Health Sciences, UNH offers more than 80 undergraduate and graduate degree programs.

Qualifications:

Candidates must have earned a masters degree in a relevant field, although a Ph.D., M.D., or D.P.M. is strongly preferred. In addition to running our A&P courses, there is an opportunity to teach and develop courses in related topics such as histology and neurobiology.

Diversity and Inclusion:

The University of New Haven is committed to diversity and inclusion in higher education. The University seeks candidates whose teaching, research and/or service has prepared them to contribute diversity and inclusion in our academic community. Applicants are asked to submit a diversity and inclusion statement explaining how their teaching, scholarship and/or service, contributes to building and supporting diverse and inclusive communities.

Application Process:

All information on candidates will be kept confidential. Review of applications will start immediately and continue until the position is filled. Qualified candidates should submit 1) a cover letter that includes a description of relevant qualifications, 2) statement of teaching philosophy and achievements, 3) a curriculum vitae, 4) a diversity and inclusion statement, and 5) contact information for at least three professional references. Candidates are also welcome to submit representative syllabi and or student course evaluations. All materials should be submitted online at http://apply.interfolio.com/77247

The University of New Haven is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer.